PREFACE.

TAVING been long employed in the fludy and culti- • vation of the English language, I lately published a dictionary like those compiled by the academies of Italy and France, for the use of fuch as aspire to exactness of criticism or elegance of style.

But it has been fince confidered that works of that kind are by no means neceffary to the greater number of readers, who, feldom intending to write or prefuming to judge, turn over books only to amule their leifure, and to gain degrees of knowledge fuitable to lower characters, or neceffary to the common bufinefs of life: these know not any other use of a dictionary than that of adjusting orthography, and explaining terms of science or words of infrequent occurrence, or remote derivation.

For these purposes, many dictionaries have been written by different authors, and with different degrees of skill; but none of them have yet fallen into my hands by which even the lowest expectations could be fatisfied. Some of these authors wanted industry, and others literature: fome knew not their own defects, and others were too idle to supply them.

For this reason a fmall dictionary appeared yet to be wanting to common readers; and, as I may without arrogance claim to myfelf a longer acquaintance with the lexicography of our language than any other writer has had, I shall hope to be confidered as having more experience at least than most of my predecessors, and as more likely to accommodate the nation with a vocabulary of daily use. I therefore offer to the publick an abstract or epitome of my former work.

In

In comparing this with other dictionaries of the fame kind it will be found to have feveral advantages.

I. It contains many words not to be found in any other.

II. Many barbarous terms and phrases by which other dictionaries may vitiate the ftyle are rejected from this.

III. The words are more correctly spelled, partly by attention to their etymology, and partly by observation of the practice of the best authors.

IV. The etymologies and derivations, whether from foreign languages or from native roots, are more diligently traced, and more diffinctly noted.

V. The lenfes of each word are more copioully enumerated, and more clearly explained.

VI. Many words occurring in the elder authors, fuch as Spenfer, Shakefpeare, and Milton, which had been hitherto omitted, are here carefully inferted; fo that this book may ferve as a gloffary or expository index to the poetical writers.

VII. To the words, and to the different fenses of each word, are fubjoined from the large dictionary the names of those writers by whom they have been used; fo that the reader who knows the different periods of the language, and the time of its authors, may judge of the elegance or prevalence of any word, or meaning of a word; and without recurring to other books, may know what are antiquated, what are unufual, and what are recommended by the best authority.

The words of this dictionary, as oppofed to others, are more diligently collected, more accurately spelled, more faithfully explained, and more authentically ascertained. Of an abstract it is not necessary to say more; and I hope, it will not be found that truth requires me to say less.

OF THE ENGLISH TONGUE.

GRAMMAR, which is the art of using words properly, comprises four parts; Orthography, Etymology, Syntax, and Profody.

In this division and order of the parts of grammar I fallow the common grammarians, without enquiring whether a fitter diffribution might not be found. Experience has long flown this method to be fo diffinct as to obviate confusion, and fo comprehensive ar to prevent any inconvenient omiffions. I likewife use the terms already received, and already underflood, though perhaps others more proper might fometimes be invented. Sylburgius, and other innovators, whofe new terms have funk their learning into neglect, have left fufficient warning againft the trifling ambridge of teaching arts in a new language.

OF ORTHOGRAPHY.

§1. ORTHOGRAPHY is the art of comtining letters into fyllables, and fyllables into words. It therefore teaches previoully the form and found of letters.

The letters of the English language are.

To these may be added certain combinations of letters universally used in printing; as \mathfrak{A} , \mathfrak{h} , and \mathfrak{E}_{\bullet} , or and per fe, and. \mathfrak{e}_{\bullet} , \mathfrak{h} , \mathfrak{h} , \mathfrak{h} , \mathfrak{h} , \mathfrak{f} , \mathfrak{f} , \mathfrak{f} , \mathfrak{f} , \mathfrak{f} , \mathfrak{h} , $\mathfrak{h$

Our letters are commonly reckoned tweaty-four, becaufe anciently i and j, as well as u and v, were expressed by the same character; but as those letters, which had always different powers, have now different forms, our alphabet may be properly faid to confift of twenty fix letters.

None of the conforants have a double form, except the finall f_s s; of which f is used in the beginning and middle, and s at the end,

Vowels are five, a, e, i, o, u.

Such is the number generally received; but for i it is the practice to write y in the end of words, as thy, holy; before i. as from die, dying; from beautify, beautifying; in the words fays, days, eyes; and in words derived from the Greek, and written originally with v, as fystem, ov's nua, fympatby, ovyma'sua.

For u we often write w after a vowel, to make a diphthong; as raw, grew, view, vow, flowing, lownefs.

The founds of all the letters are various.

In treating on the letters, I shall not, like fome other grammarians, enquire into the original of their form, as an antiquarian; nor into their formation and prolation by the organs of speech, as a mechanick, anatomift, or phifiologift ; nor into the properties and gradation of founds, or the elegance or harfiness of particular combinations, as a writer of universal and transcendental grammar. I confider the English alphabet only as it is English; and even in this narrow view I follow the example of former grammarians, perhaps with more reverence than judgment, because by writing in English I suppose my reader already acquainted with the English language; and because of sounds in general it may be observed, that words are unable to defcribe them. An account therefore of the primitive and fimple letters is ufelefs almost alike to those who know their found, and those who know it not.

§ II. OF VOWELS.

A has three founds, the flender, open, and broad.

A flender is found in most words. as face, mane; and in words ending in ation, as creation, falvation, gene-Tation.

The a flender is the proper English a, called very juftly by Erpenius, in his Arabick Grammar, a Anglicum cum e miftum, as having a middle found between the open a and the e. The French have a fimilar found in the word pais, and in their e masculine.

A open is the a of the Italian, or nearly refembles it; as father, rather, congratulate, fancy, glass.

German; as all, wall, call.

were anciently written with au, as fault, ge. This e was perhaps for a time vocal mault ; and we still write, fault, wault. This was probably the Saxon found, for it is yet but it has been long wholly mute. Camden retained in the northern dialects, and in the calls it the filent e.

ruftick pronunciation; as maun for man baund for band.

The fhort a approaches to the a open, as grass.

The long a, if prolonged by e at the end of the word, is always slender, as graze, fame.

A forms a diphthong only with i or y, and u or w. Ai or ay, as in plain, wain, gay, clay, has only the found of the long and flender a, and differs not in the pronunciation from plane, wane.

Au or aw has the found of the German a, as raw, naughty.

Ae is fometimes found in Latin words not completely naturalifed or affimilated, but is no English diphthong; and is more properly expressed by fingle e, as Cefar, Eneas.

Е.

E is the letter which occurs most frequent. ly in the English language.

E is long, as in scēne; or fhort. as in cellar, separate, celebrate, men, then.

It is always fhort before a double confonant, or two confonants, relent, medlar, reptile, serpent, cellar, cestation, blessing, sell, selling, debt.

E is always mute at the end of a word, except in monofyllables that have no other vowel, as the; or proper names, as Penolope, Phebe, Derbe ; being used to modify the foregoing confonant, as fince, once, bedge, oblige; or to lengthen the preceding vowel, as băn, tāne; căn, cāne; pin, pine; tun, iune; rob, robe; pop, fope; fir, fīre; cŭr, cūre; tŭb, tūbe.

Almost all words which now terminate in arry retentions it; as year, raiser, confonants ended anciently in e, as year, gratulate, fancy, gleft. A broad refembles the a of the bly had the force of the French e feminine, and constituted a fyllable with its affociate confonant; for, in old editions, words are fome-Many words pronounced with a broad times divided thus clea-re, fel-le, knowledor filent in poetry as convenience required;

It

It does not always lengthen the foregoing vowel, as glove, live, eive.

It has fometimes in the end of words a found obscure, and scarcely perceptible, as open, shapen, shotten, tbifile, participle, metre, lucre.

E forms a diphthong with a; as near; with i, as deign, receive; and with " or w, as new, flew.

Ea founds like e long, as mean; or like ee, as dear, clear, near.

Ei is founded like e long, as feize, perceiving.

Eu founds as u long and foft.

E a u are combined in beauty and its derivatives, but have only the found of u.

E may be faid to form a diphthong by reduplication, as agree, Sheeping.

Eo is found in yeomen, where it is founded nounced like #.

I.

I has a found long, as fine; and fhort, as fin.

That is eminently observable in i, which may be likewife remarked in other letters, that the flort found is not the long found contracted, but a found wholly different.

The long found in monofyllables is always marked by the e final, as ¢bin, thine.

I is often founded before r as a fhort u; as flirt, first, shirt.

It forms a diphthong only with e, as field, shield, which is founded as the double-ee; except friend, which is founded as frend.

I is joined with eu in lieu, and ew in view; which triphthongs are founded as the open u.

О.

O is long, as bone, obedient, corroding; or thort, as block, knock, oblique, lŏll.

Women is pronounced wimen.

į

The foort o has fometimes the found of a close u, as fon, come.

O coalefces into a diphthong with a, as moan, groan, approach; oa has the found of e long.

O is united to e in fome words derived from Greek, as acconomy; but or being not an English diphthong, they are better written as they are founded, with only e, economy.

With i, as oil, foil, moil, noif me.

This coalition of letters feems to unite the founds of the two letters as far as two founds can be united without being deftroyed, and therefore approaches more nearly than any combination in our tongue to the notion of a diphthong.

With o, as boot, boot, cooler; oo has the found of the Italian u.

With u or w, as our, power, flower; but in fome words has only the found of e long, as in foul, bowh as e fhort; and in people, where it is pro- forw, grow. These different founds are used to distinguish different significations; as bow, an inftrument for shooting; bow, a depression of the head : fow, the fhe of a boar; low, to scatter feed : bowl, an orbicular body; bowl, a wooden veffel.

> Ou is fometimes pronounced like o foft, as court; fometimes like a fhort, as cough; fometimes like # close, as could; or u open, as rough, tough; which use only can teach.

> $O\mu$ is frequently used in the last fyllable of words which in Latin end in or, and are made English, as boneur, labour, favour, from bonor, labor, favor.

> Some late innovators have ejected the u, without confidering that the laft fyllable gives the found neither of or nor ur, but a found between them, if not compounded of both ; besides that they are probably derived to us from the French nouns in cur, as beneur, faveur.

U. /

U is long in use, confusion ; or fhort, as us, concuffion.

It coalesces with a, e, i, o; but has rather in these combinations the 2 2 the force of the w confonant, as cular, ciftern, city, facily: before a. quaff, quest, quit, quite, languist; o, and u, it founds like k, as calm, fometimes in ui the i loses its sound, concavity, copper, incorporate, curioas in juice. It is fometimes mute be- fity, concupiscence. fore a, e, i, y, as guard, guest, guise, buy.

U is followed by e in wirtue, but the e has no found.

Ue is fometimes mute at the end of a word, in imitation of the French, as prorogue, fynagogue, plague, vague, barangue.

Y.

? is a vowel, which, as Quintilian observes of one of the Roman letters, we might want without inconvenience, but that we have it. It supplies the place of i at the end of words, as thy; before an i, as dying ; and is commonly retained in derivative words where it was part of a diphthong in the primitive; as deftroy, destroyer; betray, betrayed, betrayer; pray, prayer; Jay, fayer ; day, days.

Y being the Saxon vowel y, which was commonly used where i is now put, occurs very frequently in all old books.

GENERAL RULES.

A vowel in the beginning or middle fyllable, before two confonants, is commonly fhort, as opportunity.

In monofyllables a fingle vowel before a fingle confonant is fhort, as flag, frog.

§III. OF CONSONANTS.

B.

B has one unvaried found, fuch as it obtains in other languages.

It is mute in debt, debtor, fubtle, doubt, lamb, limb, dumb, thumb, climb, comb. womb.

It is used before I and r, as black, brown.

C has before e and i the found of S; as fincerely, centrick, century, circoncavity, copper, incorporate, curio-.

C might be omitted in the language without lofs, fince one of its founds might be fupplied by f, and the other by k, but that it preferves to the eye the etymology of words, as face from facies, captive from captives.

Cb has a found which is analyfed into th, as church, chin, crutch. It is the fame found which the Italians give to the c fimple before i and e_{i} as citta, cerro.

Ch is founded like k in words derived from the Greek, as chymift, fibeme, choler. Arch is commonly founded ark before a vowel, as archangel; and with the English found of cb before a confonant, as archbishep.

Cb, in fome French words not yet affimilated, sounds like sb, as machine, chaise.

C, according to English orthography, never ends a word; therefore we write flick, block, which were originally, flicke, blocke. In fuch words C is now mute.

It is used before I and r, as clack, cross.

D

Is uniform in its found, as death. diligent.

It is used before r, as draw, drofs; and w, as dwell.

F.

F, though having a name beginning with a vowel, is numbered by the grammarians among the femivowels, yet has this quality of a mute, that it is commodioufly founded before a liquid, as flask, fly, freckle. It has an unvariable found, except that of is fometimes spoken nearly as ov.

G has two founds, one hard, as in gay, go, gun; the other foft, as in gem, giant.

At the end of a word it is always hard, ring, fnug, fong, frog.

Before e and i the found is uncertain.

G before e is foft, as gem, generation, except in gear, geld, gee/e, get, gewgaw, and derivatives from words ending in g, as finging, fironger, and generally before er at the end of words, as finger.

G is mute before n, as gnash, fign, foreign.

G before i is hard, as give, except in giant, gigantick, gibbet, gibe, giblets, giles, gill, gilliflower, gin, ginger, gingle, gipfy.

Gb in the beginning of a word has the found of the hard g, as gbofily; in the middle, and sometimes at the end, it is quite filent, as though, right, fought, spoken tho', rite, foute.

It has often at the end the found of f, as langb; whence laughter retains the fame found in the middle; cough, trough, fough, tough, enough, flough.

It is not to be doubted, but that in the original pronunciation gb had the force of a contonant, deeply guttural, which is fiill continued among the Scotch.

G is used before b, l, and r.

H.

H is a note of afpiration, and shows that the following vowel must be pronounced with a strong emission of the breath, as hat, horfe.

It feldom, perhaps never, except in compounded words, begins any but the fift fyllable, in which it is always founded with a full breath, except in beir, berb, boftler, bonour, bumble, boneft, bumour, and their derivatives.

J.

J confonant founds uniformly like the foft g, and is therefore a letter useles, except in etymology, as ejaculation, jefter, jocund, juice.

K.

K has the found of hard c, and is used before e and i, where, according to English analogy, c would be soft, as kept, king, fkirt, fkeptick, for so it should be written, not freptick.

It is used before n, as knell; knot, but the tally loses its sound.

K is never doubled; but c is used before it to fhorten the vowel by a double confonant, as cockle, pickle.

L.

L has in English the fame liquid found as in other languages.

The cuftom is to double the / at the end of monofyllables, as kill, will, full. Thefe words were originally written kille, wille, fulle; and when the e first grew filent, and was afterwards omitted, the ll was retained, to give force, according to the analogy of our language, to the foregoing vowel.

L is fometimes mute, as in calf. balf, balves, calves, could, would, fould, plaim, talk, falmon, falcon.

The Saxons, who delighted in guttural founds, fometimes afpirated the l at the beginning of words, as hlar, a loaf, or bread; hlaronto, a lord; but this pronunciation is now difued.

Le at the end of words is pronounced like a weak el, in which the e is almost mute, as table, fouttle.

M. [.]

M has always the fame found, as murmur, monumental.

N.

N has always the fame found, as noble, manners.

N is sometimes mute after m, as damn, condemn, bymn.

Ρ.

P has always the fame found, which the Welfh and Germans confound with B. P is fometimes mute, as in pJalm, and between m and t, as tempt.

Pb is used for f in words derived from the Greek, as philosopher, philantbropy, Philip.

Q.

2, as in other languages, is always followed by u, and has a found which our Saxon anceftors well expressed by CP, ew, as guadrant, queen, equefrian, guilt, enquiry, quire, quoindian.

 \mathfrak{L}_{u} is fometimes founded, in words derived from the French, like k, as conquer, liquor, rifque, chequer. \mathfrak{L}_{u} is thever followed by u.

Ŗ.

R has the fame rough fnarling wifcount. found as in other tongues.

The Saxons used often to put b before it, as before I at the beginning of words.

Rb is used in words derived from the Greek, as myrrb, myrrbine, catarrbous, rbeum, rbenmatick, rbyme.

Re, at the end of fome words desived from the Latin or French, is pronounced like a weak er, as theatre, fepulchre.

S.

S has a hiffing found, as fibilation, fifter.

A fingle s feldom ends any word, except the third perfon of verbs, as loves, grows; and the plurals of nouns, as trees, buffes, differffe; the pronouns ibis, bis, ours, yours, as; the adverb ibus; and words derived from Latin, as rebus, furplus; the clofe being always either in fe, as boufs, borfe, or in fs, as grafs, drefs, blifs, lefs, anciently graffe, dreffe.

S fingle, at the end of words, has a großer found, like that of z, as srees, eyes, except this, thus, us, rebus, furplus.

It founds like \mathfrak{A} before ion, if a vowel goes before, as intruction; and like f_i if it follows a confonant, as conversion.

It founds like z before e mnte, as refuse, and before y final, as rosy z and in those words, bosom, desire, wisdom, prison, prisoner, présent, present, damsel, cosement.

It is the peculiar quality of f, that it may be founded before all confonants, except x and z, in which f is comprifed, x being only k, and z a hard or grofs f. This f is therefore termed by grammarians for poteflatis litera; the reason of which the learned Dr. Clarke erroneously supposed to be, that in some words it might be doubled at pleafore. Thus we find in feveral languages t

Σζέννομι, fcatter, fdegno, fdrucciolo, ffævellare, σφγξ, fgonbrare, fgranare, fbæke, flumber, fnell, firife, fpace, fplendour, fpring, fqueeze, foreus, flep, flrengtb, flramen, fwentura, fwell

S is mute in isle, island, demesne, viscount.

T.

T has its cuftomary found, as take, temptation.

Ti before a vowel has the found of fi, as falvation, except an f goes before, as queflion, excepting likewife derivatives from y, as mighty, mightier.

The has two founds; the one foft, as thus, whether; the other hard, as thing, think. The found is foft in these words, then, thence, and there, with their derivatives and compounds, that, these, thou, thee, thy, thine, their, they, this, these, them, though, thus, and in all words between two vowels, as father, whether; and between r and a vowel, as burthen.

In other words it is hard, as thick, thunder, faith, faithful. Where it is foftened at the end of a word, an e filent must be added, as breath, breathe; cloth, clothe.

v.

V has a found of near affinity to that of f, wain, wanity.

From f in the Iflandick alphabet, wis only diffinguished by a diacritical point.

Digitized by Google

W.

Of w, which in diphthongs is often an undoubted vowel, some grammarians have doubted whether it ever be a confonant; and not rather as it is called a double " or ou, as water may be refolved into ouater; but letters of the fame found are always reckoned confonants in other alphabets: and it may be observed, that w follows a vowel without any hiatus or difficulty of utterance, as frosty winter. Yet I am of opinion that both w and y are always vowels, because they cannot after a vowel be uled with the found which is supposed to make them confonants.

Wb has a found accounted peculiar to the English, which the Saxons better expressed by hp, bw, as what, whence, whiting; in whore only, and fometimes in wholefome, wh is founded like a fimple b.

X.

X begins no English word ; it has the found of ks, as axle, extraneous.

Y.

Y, when it follows a confonant, is a vowel; when it precedes either vowel or diphthong, is a confonant, as ye, young. It is thought by fome to be in all cafes a vowel. It may be observed of y as of w, that it follows a vowel without any. hiatus, as roly youth; but yet that it cannot be founded after a vowel.

Z.

· Z begins no word originally Englife; it has the found, as its name izzard or f hard expresses, of an f uttered with closer compression of the palate by the tongue, as freeze, or terror to innovators. froze.

In orthography I have fuppofed orthoepy, certain founds by proper characters. I have following lines according to his fcheme, they therefore obferved in what words any of the would have appeared thus. letters are mute.

Moft of the writers of English grammar have given long tables of words pronounced otherwife than they are written, and form not fufficiently to have confidered, that of English, as of all living tongues, there is a double pronunciation, one curfory and celloquial, the other regular and folemn. The curfory pronunciation is always vague and uncertain, being made different in different mouths by negligence, unfkilfulnefe, or affectation. The folemn pronunciation, though by no means immutable and permanent, is yet always lefs remote from the orthography, and lefs liable to capricious innovation. They have however generally formed their tables according to the curfory fpeech of those with whom they happened to converse; and concluding that the whole nation combines to vitiate language in one manner, have often established the jargon of the lowest of the people as the model of speech.

For pronunciation the best general rule is. to confider those as the most elegant speakers who deviate leaft from the written words.

There have been many fchemes offered for the emendation and fettlement of our orthography, which, like that of other nations, being formed by chance, or according to the fancy of the earliest writers in rude ages, was at first very various and uncertain, and is yet fufficiently irregular. Of thefe reformers fome have endeavoured to accommodate orthography better to the pronunciation. without confidering that this is to measure by a fhadow, to take that for a model or ftandard which is changing while they apply it. Others, lefs abfurdly indeed, but with equal unlikelihood of fuccefs, have endeavoured to proportion the number of letters to that of founds, that every found may have its own character, and every character a fingle found. Such would be the orthography of a new language to be formed by a fynod of grammarians upon principles of fcience. But who can hope to prevail on nations to change their practice, and make all their old books ufelefs? or what advantage would a new orthography procure equivalent to the confusion and perplexity of such an alteration ?

Some of these schemes I shall however exhibit, which may be used according to the divertities of genius, as a guide to reformers,

One of the first who proposed a scheme of regular orthography, was Sir Thomas Smith, fecretary of state to Queen Elizabeth, a man or just utterance of words, to be included; of real learning, and much practifed in gramorthography being only the art of expressing matical disquisitions. Had he written the

After him another mode of writing was effered by Dr. Gill, the celebrated matter of $1, Paul's fchool in London; which I canmot reprefent exactly for want of types, but will approach as nearly as I can by means of characters now in ufe fo as to make it underflood, exhibiting two flanzas of Spenfer in ghe reformed orthography.

Spenfer, book iii. canto 5.

Unthankful wretch, faid he, is this the meed, With which her forereign merey thou doft quite ?

Thy life the faved by her gracious deed;

But thou doft ween with villanous defpight, To blot her honour, and her heav nly light.

Die, rather die, than fo difloyally Deem of her bigh defert, or feem fo light. Fair death it is to fhun more fhame; then die.

Die, rather die, than ever love difloyally. But if to love difloyalty it be,

Shall I then hate her, that from deathes door Me brought? ah! far be fuch reproach from me.

What can I lefs do, than her love therefore, Sith L her due reward cannot reftore ? Die, rather die, and dying do her ferve, Dying her ferve, and hving her adore. Thy life the gave, thy life the doth deferve ; Die, rather die, than ever from her fervice fwerve.

Dj, raber dj, and djig du her ferv, Djig her ferv, and libig her ador. Dj ljf rj gav, Sj ljf, rj dub dezerv; Djaraber di, Sen ever from her fervis forer, Dr. Gill was followed by Charles Butler, a man who did not want an underflanding which might have qualified him for better employment. He feems to have been, more fanguine than his predeceffors, for he printed his book according to his own [cheme; which the following [pecimen will make eafly underflood,

But whenfoever you have occasion to prouble their patience, or to some among them being troubled, it is better to ftand upon your guard, than to truft to their gentlenels. For the fafeguard of your face, which they have moft mind unto, provide a purfehood, made of coarfe boultering, to be drawn and knit about your collar, which for more fafety is to be lined against the eminent parts with woollen cloth. First cut a piece about an inch and a half broad, and half a yard long, to reach round by the temples and forehead, from one car to the other; which being fowed in his place, join unto it two fhort pieces of the fame breadth under the eyes, for the balls of the cheeks, and then let another piece about the breadth of a fhilling against the top of the nose. At other times, when they are not angered, a little piece half a quarter broad, to cover the eyes and parts about them, may ferve though it be in the heat of the day.

Bet penfoëver you hav' occasion to trubble Seir patienc', or to coom among Sem beeing trubled, it is better to fland upon your gard, San to truft to Seir gentlenes. For Se faf-gard of your fac', pio Sey hav' moft mind' unto, provid' a pursehood, mad' of coorse boultering, to bee drawn and knit about your collar, pio for mor' faf'ty is to bee lined against 5' eminent parts wit woollen clot. First cut a peec' about an ino and a half broad, and half a yard long, to reap round by Se temples and for'head, from one ear to Se Soer; pio beeing fowed in his plac', join unto it two port peeces of the fam breadt under Se eys, for the bals of Se cheeks, and then fet an oder peec' about de breadz of a rilling against the top of Se nofe. Buller on she Nature and Properties of Bees, 1634.

In the time of Charles I. there was a very prevalent inclination to change the orthography; as appears, among other books, in fuch editions of the works of Milton as were published by himfelf. Of these reformers every man had his own fcheme; but they agreed in one general defign of accommodating the letters to the pronuncia- the plugal without an article; as, tion, by ejecting fuch as they thought fuperfluous. Some of them would have written thefe lines thus:

-All the erth Shall then be paradis, far happier place Than this of Eden, and far happier dais.

Bishop Wilkins afterwards, in his great work of the philosophical language, proposed, without expecting to be followed, a regular cethography ; by which the Lord's prayer is to be written thus :

Yer Fådher heitfh art in heven, halloed bi dhyi nam, dhyi cingdym cym, dhyi sill bi dyn in erth as it is in heven, &c.

We have fince had no general reformers ; but fome ingenious men have endeavoured to deferve well of their country, by writing bonor and labor for bonour and labour, red for read in the preter-tenfe, fais for fayt, repete for repeat, explane for explain, or declame for declaim. Of these it may be faid, that as they have done no good, they have done little harm ; both becaufe they have innovated little, and because few have followed them.

PART II.

ETYMOLOGY.

TYMOLOGY teaches the deduction of one word from another, and the various modifications by which the fense of the fame word is diversified ; as borse, borses ; I love, I loved.

ς Ι. Of the ARTICLE.

The English have two articles, an or a, and the.

An, a.

A has an indefinite fignification, and means one, with some reference to more; as, This is a good book, that is, one among the books that are good. He was killed by a favord, that is, fime feword. This is a better book for a man than a boy, that is, for one of those that are men than one of these that are beys. An army might enter withaut refistance, that is, any army.

In the fenses in which we use a or an in the fingular, we speak in Vol. I.

these are good books.

I have made an the original article, becaufe it is only the Saxon an, or zen, one. applied to a new use, as the German ein, and the French un; the n being cut off before a confonant in the fpeed of utterance.

Grammarians of the last age direct, that an should be used before b; whence it appears that the Englifh anciently afpirated lefs. An is ftill used before the filent b, as, an berb, an boneft man: but otherwife a; as,

A horse, a horse, my kingdom for a horfe. Shake (peare.

THE has a particular and definite fignification.

The fruit

Of that forbidden tree, whole mortal tafte

Brought death into the world.

That is, that particular fruit, and this world in which we live. So He giveth fodder for the cattle, and green herbs for the use of man; that is, for those beings that are cattle, and bis use that is man.

The is used in both numbers.

I am as free as Nature first made man,

- Ere the base laws of servitude began,
- When wild in woods the noble fa-Dryden. vage ran.

Many words are used without articles; as,

1. Proper names, as John, Alexander, Longinus, Aristarchus, Jerusa. lem, Athens, Rome, London. God is ufed as a proper name.

2. Abaract names, as blacknefs, witchcraft, wirtue, vice, beauty, ugliness, love, hatred, anger, gooanature, kindne/s.

the mere being of any thing is implied : This is not beer, but water ; This is not brafs, but steel.

§ II. OF NOUNS SUBSTANTIVES.

The relations of English nouns to words going before or following are not expressed by cofes, or changes of termination, but as in most of the other European languages by prepofitions, unlefs we may be faid to have a genitive cafe.

Singular.

Nom. Magister, a Mafter, the Mafter. Gen. Magistri, of a Master, of the Master, or Mafters, the Mafters. Dat. Magifiro, to a Mafter, to the Mafter. Acc. Magistrum, a Mafter, the Mafter. Mafter, O Mafter. Voc. Magister, Abl. Magifiro, from a Mafter, from the Mafter.

Plural.

Nom. Magistri, Mafters, the Mafters. Gen. Magistrorum, of Masters, of the Masters, Dat. Magistris, to Mafters, tothe Mafters. Acc. Magistros, Masters, the Masters. Voc. Magifiri, Masters, O Masters. Abl. Magiftris, from Mafters, from the Maft-[ers.

Our nouns are therefore only declined thus :

Gen. Mafters. Phur, Mafters. Mafter. Gen. Scholars. _ Scholar, Plur. Scholars.

These genitives are always written with mark of elifion, master's, scholar's, according to an opinion long received, that the's is a contraction of bis, as the foldier's valour, for the foldier His walour : but this cannot be the true original, because 's is put to female houns, Woman's beauty; the Virgin's delicacy; Haughty Juno's unrelenting bate : and collective nouns, as Women's paffions; the rabble's in-folence; the multitude's folly; in all these cases it is apparent that bis cannot be understood. We say likewise, the foundation's strength, the diamond's luftre, the winter's feverity; but in these cases bis may be understood, be and bis having formerly been applied to neuters in the place now fupplied by it and its.

The learned, the fagacious Wallis, to whom every English grammarian owes a tribute of reverence, calls this modification of the noun an adjective poffefive ; 1.think with

. 2. Words in which nothing but no more propriety than he might have and plied the fame to the genitive in equitums decus, Trojæ oris, or any other Latin genitive.

> This termination of the noun feems to conftitute a real genitive indicating polleffion. It is derived to us from those who declined rmio, a fmith; Gen. nmider, of a fmith; Plur. rmider, or rmidar, fmiths; and fo in two other of their feven declenfions.

> It is a further confirmation of this opinions that in the old poets both the genitive and plural were longer by a fyllable than the original word ; knitis, for knight's, in Chaucers leavis, for leaves, in Spenfer.

> When a word ends in s, the genitive may be the fame with the nominative, as Venate temple.

The plural is formed by adding s, as table, tables; flie, flics; fifter, fifters; wood, woods; or es where s could not otherwise be sounded, as after ch, s, b, x, z; after c founded like s, and g like j; the mute e is vocal before s, as lance, lances butrage, outrages.

The formation of the plural and genitive fingular is the fame.

A few words yet make the plural in m, as men, women, oxen, fwine, and more an-ciently eyen and fboon. This formation is that which generally prevails in the Teutonick dialects.

Words that end in f commonly form their plural by ves, as loaf, loaves; calf, calves.

Except a few, muff, muffs; chief, chiefs. So boof, roof, proof, relief, mischief, puff, cuff, dwarf, bandkerchief, grief.

Irregular plurals are teeth from tooth, lice from loufe, mice from moufe, geefe from goofe, feet from foot, dice from die, pence from penny, bretbren from brother, children from ehild.

Plurals ending in s have no genitives; but we fay, Womens excellencies, and Weigh the mens wits against the ladies bairs. Pope.

Dr. Wallis thinks the Lords' boufe may be faid for the boufe of Lords; but fuch phrafes are not now in ule; and furely an English ear rebels against them.

..... III. Of ADJECTIVES.

"Adjectives in the English language are wholly indeclinable; having neither cafe, gender, nor number, and being added to substantives in all relations without any change; as, a good woman, good women, of a good weman; a good man, good men. of good men.

The Comparison of Adjectives.

The comparative degree of adjectives is formed by adding er, the superlative by adding eft, to the pofitive; as, fair, fairer, faireft; lovely, lovelier, lovelieft; Sweet, fweeter, fweeteft; low, lower, loweft; high, higher, higheft.

Some words are irregularly compared; as good, better, best; bad, worfe, worf; little, le/s, least; near, marer, next; much, more, most; mamy (for moe), more (for moer), most (for moeff); late, later, lateft or found in good writers formed without regard laft.

Some comparatives form a superlative by adding most, as nether, nethermost; outer, outmost; under, undermost ; up, upper, uppermost ; fore, former, foremost.

Most is fometimes added to a fubfantive, as topmost, fouthmost.

Many adjectives do not admit of comparison by terminations, and are only compared by more and most, as benevelent, more benevolent, most benevolent.

All adjectives may be compared by more and most, even when they have comparatives and fuperlatives regularly formed; as fair; fairer, OS more fair; faireft, or most fair.

In adjectives that admit a regular compatilon, the comparative more is oftener used than the superlative most, as more fair is oftener written for fairer, than most fair for faireft.

The comparison of adjectives is very uncertain; and being much regulated by commodioufness of utterance, or agreeablenefs of found. is not eafily reduced to rules.

Monofyllables are commonly com- . pared.

Polyfyllables, or words of more than two fyllables, are feidom com-,pared otherwise than by more and most, as deplorable, more deplorable, most deplorable.

Diffyllables are feldom compared if they terminate in fome, as fulfime, toilfome; in ful, as careful, Jpleenful, dreadful; in ing, as trifting, charming; in ous, as porous; in lefs, as careles, barmless; in ed, as wretched; in id, as candid; in al, as mortal; in ent, as recent, fervent; in ain, as certain; in ive, as missive; in dy, as woody; in fy, as puffy; in ky, as rocky, except lucky; in my, as roomy; in my, as skinny; in py, as ropy, except bappy; in ry, as boary.

Some comparatives and fuperlatives are vet to the foregoing rules; but in a language fubjected fo little and fo lately to grammar, fuch anomalies muft frequently occur.

So fbady is compared by Milton. She in fadieft covert hid, Tun'd her nocturnal note. Parad: Loft.

And wirtuous.

What she wills to fay or do,

Seems wileft, wirtuoufest, discreeteft, beft. Parad. Loff.

So trifling by Ray, who is indeed of no great authority.

It is not fo decorous, in respect of God, that he fhould immediately do all the meaneft and triffingest things himfelf, without. making use of any interior or fubordinate minifter. Ray on the Creation.

Famous, by Milton.

Inventive, by Ascham.

Those have the inventives heads for all purposes, and roundest tongues in all matters. Afcham's Schoolmafter.

The termination in is may be accounted in fome fort a degree of comparison, by which the fignification is diminished below the positive, as black, blackifb, or tending to blacknefs'; fait, faltifb, or having a little tafte of fait: they therefore admit no comparison. This termination is feldom added but to words expressing leafible qualities, nor often to words of above one fyllable, and is fcarcely uled in the folemn or fublime ftyle.

§ IV. Of PRONOUNS.

Pronouns, in the English language, are, I, thou, be, with their plurals me, ye, they, it, who, which, what, whether, who foever, what foever, my, mine, our, ours, thy, thine, your, yours, kis, ber, bers, their, theirs, this, that, other, another, the fame.

For it the practice of ancient writers was to use be, and for its, bis.

The poffeffive pronouns, like other adjectives, are without cases or change of termination.

The possessive of the first perfon is my, mine, our, ours; of the second, tby, thine, you, yours; of the third, from be, bis, from fbe, ber, and bers, and in the plural their, theirs, for both fexes.

Our, yours, bers, theirs, are used when the fubftantive preceding is separated by a verb, as Thefe are our books, Thefe books are ours. Your children excel outs in flature, but ours surpass yours in learning.

Ours, yours, bers, theirs, notwithftanding their feeming plural termination, are applied equally to fingular and plural fubstantives, as This back is ours. Thefe books are ours.

Mine and thine were formerly used before a vowel, as mine amiable lady; which though now difused in profe, might be still properly continued in postry : they are used as ours and yours, when they are referred to a fubfantive preceding.

Their and theirs are the posses likewife of it, and are therefore applied to things.

Pronouns relative are, who, which, what, whether, whofeever, what for ever.

Whole is rather the poetical than regular spicing of subich :

The fruit Of that forbidden tree, whole mortal taffe Brought death into the world. Milton.

"Wither is only used in the nominative and accufative cafes; and has no plural, being applied only to one of a number, commonaly to one of two, as Whether of these is left I known not. Whether shall I choose? It is now almost obfolete.

The plural others is not used but when it is referred to a subfrantive preceding, as I have fent other borfes. I have not fent the fame borfes, but others.

Another, being only an other, has no plural.

Here, there, and where, joined with certain particles, have a relative and pronominal use. Hereof, herein, hereby, hereafter, herewith, thereof, therein; thereby, therewpon; therewith, whereof, awherewith, which fignify, of this, in this, &c. of that, in that, &c. of which, in achich, &c.

Therefore and wherefore, which are properly there for, and where for, for that, for which, are now reckoned conjunctions, and continued in use. The reft seem to be passing by degrees into neglect, though proper, useful, and analogous. They are referred both to ingular and plural antecedents.

There are two more words used only, in conjunction with pronouns, own and feir.

Own is added to poffestives, both fingular and plural, as my own band, our own boule. It is emphasical, and implies a filent contrariety or opposition; as, I live in my sum boule, that is, not in a bired bousfe. This I did with my own band, that is, without help, or not by proxy.

Self is added to posselves, as myfelf, yourselves; and sometimes to personal pronouns, as bimself, itself, themselves. It then, like own, expresses emphasis and opposition, as I did this myself, that is, not another; or it forms a reciprocal pronoun, as We burt ourselves by wain rage.

Himfelf, isfelf, themfelves, is supposed by Wallis to be put by corruption, for his felf, is's felf, their felves, so that felf is always a substantive. This seems jully chlerved, for we say, He came bimfelf; Himfelf shall do this; where bimfelf cannot be an acculative.

§ V. Of the VERB.

English verbs are active, as l low; or neuter, as l languifb. The neuters are formed like the actives.

Moft verbs fignifying attian, may likewile fignify candition or babit, and become neutors; as I love, 1 am in love; I firite, 1 am now friking.

Verbs have only two tenfes inflected in their terminations, the prefent, and fimple preterite; the other tenfes are compounded of the auxiliary verbs bave, fball, will, lt, may, c, m, and the infinitive of the active or neuter verb.

for, for that, for which, are now. The paffive voice is formed by reckoned conjunctions, and conti-joining the participle preterite to the nucd in use. The reft feem to be fubftantive verb, as I am lowed.

There is another form of English verbs, in which the infinitive mood is joined to the verb do in its various inflections, which are therefore to be learned in this place.

To Do.

Indicative. Prefent. Sing. I do, thou doft, he doth; Plur. We do, ye do, they do.

Infinitive. To do; to have done. Participle present. Doing. Participle preter. Done.

Do is fometimes used superfluously, as, I do love, I did love; fimply for I love, or I loved ; but this is coulidered as a vitio.s mode of fpeech.

It is fometimes used emphatically; as,

I do love thee, and when I love thee not, Shakefp.

It is frequently joined with a negative; as, I like her, but I do not love her; I wifbed him fuccess, but

The Imperative prohibitory is feldom applied in the fecond perfon, at least in prose, without the word do; as, Stop bim, but do not burt him; Praise beauty, but do not dote on it.

Its chief use is in interrogative forms of speech, in which it is used through all the perfons; as, Do I live? Dost thou strike me? Do they rebel ? Did I complain ? Didft thou .love her ? Did she die ? So likewise in negative interrogations; Do I not yet grieve ? Did she not die ?

Do is thus used only in the simple tenfes.

There is another manner of conjugating neuter verbs, which, when it is used, may not improperly denominate them neuter pallives, as they are inflected according to the paffive form by the help of the verb fubstantive to be. They answer nearly to the reciprocal verbs in French; as,

- I am risen, surrexi, Latin; Je me fuis levé, French.
- I was walked out, exieram; Je m'etois promené.

In like manner we commonly express the The tempeft is raging, furit proceila. I am grieving, dolco. She is dying, illa moritur, The tempeft is raging, furit proceila. So the other tenfes, as, We were walking, iruyyi-votev or spiralizingte, I bace been walking, I bad here and the archiver. been walking, I fall or will be walking

There is another manner of using the active participle, which gives it a paffive figni-fication; as, The grammar is now printing, grammatica jam nunc chartis imprimitur. The brais is forging, æra excuduntur. This is, in my opinion, a vitious expression, probably corrupted from a phrase more pure, but now fomewhat obfolete; The book is a printing, The brass is a forging ; a being properly at, at, and printing and forging verbal nouns figzaifying action; according to the analogy of this language.

The indicative and conjunctive moods are by modern writers frequently confounded, or rathet the conjunctive is wholly neglectet; when fome convenience of verification does not invite its revival. It is used among the purer writers after if, though, ere, before, which the purer writers after if, though, ere, before, which words of wishing; as, Doublefs those are tour father, though Abraham be ignosrame of us, and Ifrael acknowledge us not.

OF IRREGULAR VERBS.

The English verbs were divided by Ben. Johnson into four conjugations, without any reason arising from the nature of the language, which has properly but one conjugation, such as has been exemplified; from which all deviations are to be confidered as anomalies, which are indeed in our monosyllable Saxon verbs, and the verbs derived from them very frequent; but almost all the verbs which have been adopted from other languages, follow the regular form.

Our verbs are observed by Dr. Wallis to be irregular only in the formation of the preterite, and its participle. Indeed, in the fcantiness of our conjugations, there is scarcely any other place for irregularity.

The first irregularity, is a slight deviation from the regular form, by rapid utterance or poetical contraction: the laft fyllable ed is often joined with the former by fuppreffion of e; as low'd for loved; after c, cb, fb, f, k, x, and after the confonants f, th, when more ffrongly pronounced, and sometimes after m, n, r, if preceded by a fhort vowel, t is used in pronunciation, but very feldom in writing, rather than d; as plac't, fratch't, fift's, wak's, dwel't, smel't, for plac'd. Inat. b'd, fifb'd, wak'd, dwel'd, Smel'd; or placed, Inatched, fifted, waked, dwelled. finelled.

Those words which termitate in d or 4, or p, make their preterite in Vol. 1. t, even in folemn language; as, crept, felt, dwelt; fometimes after x, ed is changed into t; as vext; this is not conftant.

A long vowel is often changed into a flort one : thus, kept, flept, wept, crept, fwept; from the verbs, to keep, to fleep, to weep, to creep, to fweep.

Where d or t go before, the additional letter d or t, in this contracted form, coalefce into one letter with the radical d or t: if t were the radical, they coalefce into t; but if d were the radical, then into d or t, as the one or the other letter may be more eafily pronounced; as, read, led, Spread, Shed, Shred, bid, bid, chid, fed, bled, bred, sped, strid, rid; from the verbs, to read, to lead, to spread, to fed, to spread, to bide, to bide, to chide, to feed, to bleed, to breed, to Speed, to firide, to flide, to ride. And thus, caft, burt, coft, burft, cat, beat, Sweat, fit, quit, Smit, writ, bit, bit, met, shot; from the verbs, to cast, to burt, to cost, to burst, to eat, to beat, to fweat, to fit, to quit, to fmite, to write, to bite, to hit, to meet, to foot. And in like manner, lent, fent, rent, girt; from the verbs, to lend, to spend, to rend, to gird.

The participle preterite or paffive is often formed in en, inflead of ed; as, been, taken, given, flain, known, from the verbs to be, to take, to give, to flay, to know.

Many words have two or more participles, as not only written, bitten, eaten, beaten, bidden, chidden, footten, cholen, broken; but likewile writ, bit, eat, beat, hid, chid, flot, chofe, broke, are promifcuoufly ufed in the participle, from the verbs to write, to bite, to eat, to beat, to hide, to chide, to floot, to choofe, to break, and many fuch like.

In the fame manner fown, shown, hown, nown, loaden, laden, as well as fow'd, show'd, how'd, mow'd, loaded, laded, from the verbs to fow, to show, to how, to mow, to load, or lade.

SVI. OF DERIVATION.

That the English language may be more eafily underftood, it is necessary to enquire how its' derivative words are deduced from their primitives, and how the primitives are borrowed from other languages. In this enquiry I shall fometimes copy Dr. Wallis, and fometimes endeavour to fupply his defects, and rectify his errours.

Nouns are derived from verbs.

The thing implied in the verb as done or produced, is commonly either the prefent of the verb; as, to love, love; to fright, a fright; to fight, a fight; or the preterice of the verb, as, to strike, I strick or strook, a firoke.

The action is the fame with the participle present, as loving, frightdenoted by the syllable er added to sap, faples. the verb, as lover, frighter, friker.

Substantives, adjectives, and sometimes other parts of speech, are changed into verbs : in which cafe the vowel is often lengthened, or the confonant foftened; as, a house, to bayle; brais, to braze; glais, to glaze; grafs, to graze; price, to prize; breath, to breathe; a filh, to filh; eyl, to eyl; further, to further; forward. to forward; hinder, to binder.

Sometimes the termination en is added, especially to adjectives; as, haste, to basten; length, to lengthen; Arength, to strengthen; thort, to shorten; fast, to fasten; white, to ubiten; black, to blacken; hard, to harden; foft, to foften.

From substantives are formed adjectives of plenty, by adding the termination y; as, a loufe, loufy; wealth, wealthy; health, healthy; might, mighty; worth, worthy; wit, witty; luft, lufty; water, watery; earth, earthy; wood, a wood, woody; air, airy; a heart, bearty; a hand, bandy.

From substantives are formed adjectives of plenty, by adding the termination ful, denoting abundance; as, joy, joyful ; fruit, fruitful ; youth, youthful; care, careful; ule, uf.ful; delight, delightful; plenty, plentiful; help, belpful.

Sometimes, in almost the fame fense, but with some kind of diminution thereof, the termination fome is added, denoting fomething, or in Some degree; as, delight, delight fome; game, game/ome ; irk, irk/ome ; burden, burdenfame ; trouble, troublesome ; light, lightfome; hand, bandfome; alone, lon fome; toil, toilfome.

On the contrary, the termination less added to fubstantives, makes adjectives fignifying want; as, worthlefs, witlefs, beartlefs, joylefs, carelefs,

The agent, or perfon acting, is helpl fs. Thus comfort, comfortlef. 2

Privation or contrariety is very often denoted by the particle un prefixed to many adjectives, or in before words derived from the Latin; as, pleasant, unpleasant ; wife, unv fe ; profitable, unprofitable; patient, im-patient. Thus unworthy, unhealthy, unfruitful, unu/eful, and many more.

The original English privative is un; but as we often borrow from the Latin, or its descendents, words already fignifying privation, as inefficacious, impious, indifcreet, the infeparable particles un and in have fallen into confusion, from which it is not easy to difentangle them.

Un is prefixed to all words originally English, as untrue, untruth, untaught, unband-∫ome.

Un is prefixed to all participles made privative adjectives, as unfeeling, unaffifting, unaided, undelighted, unendeared.

Un ought never to be prefixed to a participle present, to mark a forbearance of action, as unfighing; but a privation of habit, as unpitying.

Un is prefixed to most substantives which have an English termination, as unfertilenefs, unperfectness, which, if they have borrowed terminations, take in or im, as infertility, imperfection; untivil, incivility; unalive, inaltivity.

In borrowing adjectives, if we receive them already compounded, it is usual to retain the particle prefixed, as indecency, inelegant, improper; but if we borrow the adjective, and add the privative particle, we commonly prefix an, as unpolite, ungallant.

The prepositive particles dis and mis, derived from the des and mes of the French, fignify almost the fame as un; yet dis rather imports contrariety than privation, fince it answers to the Latin preposition de. Mis infiguates fome error, and for the most part may be rendered by the Latin words male or perperan. To like, to diflike ; honour, diffioneur; to honour, to grace, to dishonour, to difgrace; to deign, to difdeign; chance, hap, mischance, mishap; 10 take, to mistake; deed, misdeed; to nle" € 2 ble, to mifife; to employ; to mif- ports a succession of smaller and then greater employ; to apply, to mifatply.

Words derived from Latin written with de or dis retain the fame fignification, as diflinguish, diflinguo; detract, detraho; defame, defamo; detain. detineo.

The termination ly added to fubftantives, and fometimes to adjectives, forms adjectives that import fome kind of fimilitude or agreement, being formed by contraction of lick or like.

A giant, giantly, giantlike; earth, earthly; heaven, heaveny; world, word y; God, godly; good, goodly.

The fame termination ly, added to adjectives, forms adverbs of like fignification; as, beautiful, beautifully; fweet, fweetly; that is, in a beautiful manner; with some degree of Sweetnes.

The termination is added to adjectives, imports diminution; and added to fubstantives, imports fimilitude or tendency to a character; as, green, green /b ; white, white/b ; foft. Joftish; a thief, thievish; a wolf, wolvifs; a child, childifb.

We have forms of diminutives in subfrantives, though not frequent; as, a hill, a billock; a cock, a cockrel; a pike, pickrel; this is a French termination: a goofe, a gestin; this is a German termination : a lamb. a lambkin; a chick, a chicken; a man, a manikin; a pipe, a pipkin; and thus Halkin, whence the patronimick Hawkins, Wilkin, Thomkin, and others.

Yet fill there is another form of diminution among the English, by lesioning the found itself, especially of vowels; as there is a form of augmenting them by enlarging, or even lengthening it; and that fometimes not fo much by change of the letters, as of their pronunciation ; 'as, fup, fip, foop, fop, fipper, where, befides the extenuation of the vowel, there is added the French termination et; top, tip; spit, spout; babe, baby, booby, Bonais; great pronounced long, especially if with a ftronger found, great; little pro- flip. popinced long, lec-tle; sing, tang, tong, imfounds; and fo in jingle, jangle, tingle, tanglas and many other made words.

Much bowever of this is arbitrary and fagciful, depending wobolly on oral usterance, and therefore fcarcely worthy the notice of Wallis.

Of concrete adjectives are made. abstract substantives, by adding the termination nef, and a few in Lood or head, noting character or qualities ; as, white, whitenefs ; hard, bardnefs ; great, greatnefs ; fkilful, fki'fulnefs, unskilfulness; godbead, manbood, maidenhead, widowhood, knightbood, priefbood, likelibood, fal ebood.

There are other abstracts, partly derived from adjectives, and partly from verbs, which are formed by the addition of the termination th, a fmall change being fometimes made; as, long, length; ftrong, frength; broad, wide, breadth, width; deep. depth ; true, truth ; warm, warmth ; dear, dearth; flow, flowth; merry, mirth; heal, health; well, weal, wealth ; cry, aroughth ; young, youth ; and fo moon, month.

Like these are some words derived from verbs ; dy, deatb ; till, tiltb ; grow, growth; mow, later mowth. after mouth; commonly spoken and written later math, after math; fteal, stealth; bear. birth; rue, ruth; and probably earth from to ear or plow; fly, fight; weigh, weight; fray, fright ; to draw, draught.

These should rather be written flightb, frighth, only that cuftom prevails," left b fhould be twice repeated.

The fame form retain faith, fpight, wreathe, wrath, broth, froit, breath, footh, worth, light, wight, and the like, whole primitives are either entirely obsolete, or feldom occur. Perhaps they are derived from fey or foy, Spry, wry, wreak, brow, mow, fry, bray, Jay, work.

Some ending in hip, imply an office, employment, or condition; as, king stip, ward ship, guardian ship, partnership, Acwardship, headship, lordworphipful, to wor pip.

Some few ending in dem, rick, wick, do especially denote dominion, at least state or condition; as, kingdom, ankedom, earldom, princedom, popedom, christendom, freedom, wildom, whore. dam. bifoprick, bailywick.

Ment and age are plainly French terminations, and are of the fame imevers occurring; except in words derived from the French, as commandment, usaze.

There are in English often long trains of words allied by their meaning and derivation; as, to beat, a bat, a batoon, a battle, a beetle, a battle door, to batter, butter, a kind of glutinous composition for food. All these are of fimilar fignification, and perhaps de-sived from the Latin batue. Thus take, touch, tickle, tack, tackle; all imply a local conjunction, from the Latin tango, tetigi, tactum.

From two are formed twain, twice, twenty, tracter, twins, twine, twift, twirl, twig, twitch, twinge, bezween, hetwint, twilight, twihil.

The following remarks, extracted from Wallis, are ingenious, but of more fubtlety than folidity, and fuch as perhaps might in every language be enlarged without end.

Sn usually implies the nofe, and what relates toit. From the Latin nafus are derived the French nes and the English noje; and reffe, a promontory, as projecting like a noie. But as if from the confonants ns taken from nasus, and transposed that they may the better correspond, in denotes najus ; and thence are derived many words that relate to the nole, as fnout, fneeze, fnore, fnort, fnear, fniker, spot, frivel, frite, fruff, fruffle, fraffle, frarle, Inudge.

There is another in, which may perhaps be derived from the Latin finuo, as fnake, Ineak, Snail, Snare; so likewise Snup and fnatch, fnib, fnub.

Bl implies a blaft; as, blow, blaft, to blaft, to blight, and, metaphorically, to blaft one's reputation; bleat, black, a bleak place, to look bleak or weather beaten, bleak, blay, bleath, blufter, blurt, blifter, blab, bladder, bleb,

Thus worfbip; that is, worship ; whence berrings, blaft, blaze, to blow, that is, blofform bloom ; and perhaps blood and b'uft.

In the native words of our tongue is to be found a great agreement between the letters and the thing fignified; and therefore the founds of letters imalier, fharper, louder, clofer, foster, stronger, clearer, more obfcure, and more stridulous, do very often intimate the like effects in the thing fignified.

Thus words that begin with fir intimate the force and effect of the thing fignified, as if probably derived from convous, or firenuus; as, Strong, Strength, Strew, Strike, Areake, Stroke, port with us as among them, fcarcely A ipe, friee, Brife, Bruggle, Brout, Brut, Bretch, firant, firist, freight, that is narrow, distrain, ftress, distress, string, strap, stream, streamer, strand, strip, stray, struggle, strange, firide, Braddle.

St in like manner implies ftrength, but in a lefs degree, fo much only as is fufficient to preferve what has been already communicated, rather than acquire any new degree ; as if it were derived from the Latin flo : for example, fland, flay, that is, to remain, er to prop; staff, stay, that is, to oppose; stop, to fluff, fifle, to flay, that is, to ftop; a flay, that is, an obstacle; flick, flut, flutter, flammer, flagger, flickle, flick, flake, a fharp pale, and any thing deposited at play; flock, flem, fling, to fling, flink, flitch, flud, flanchion, flub, flubble, to flub up, flump, whence flumble, stalk, to stalk, step, to stamp with the feet, whence to flamp, that is, to make an imprefiion and a stamp; stow, to store, to bestow, steward, or stoward, stead, steady, steadfast, stable, a stable, a stall, to stall, stool, ficargir, junice, a place, appendix appendix field fall, fiill, fiall, fialage, fall, flage, fiill adj. and fill adv. fiale, foot, fluray, fleed, float, fiallion, fiff, flark-dead, to flurace with hunger or cold; flone, field, flern, flanch, re flanch blood, to flare, fleep, fleeple, flair, flandard, a flated measure, flately. In all these, and perhaps some others, & denotes fomething firm and fixed.

The implies a more violent degree of motion, as throw, thruft, throng, throb, through, threat, threaten, thrall, throws.

Wr implies fome fort of obliquity or diftortion, as wry, to wreathe, wrest, wresile, wring, wrong, wrinch, wrench, wrangle, wrinkle, wraib, wreak, wrack, wreich, wrift; wrap.

Sw implies a filent agitation, or a fofter kind of lateral motion; as, jway, frwag, to fway, fwagger, fwerve, fweat, fweep, fwill, fwim, fwing, fwift, fweet, fwitch, fwinge.

Nor is there much difference of fm in Smooth, Smug, Smile, Smirk, Smite, which fignifies the fame as to frike, but is a fofter word; small, smell, smack, smother, smart, a blifter, blabber-lipt, blubber-cbeek't, bloted, blote- fmart blow properly fignifies fuch a kind of firoke froke as with an originally filent motion crafb, clafb, gnafb, plafb, crufb, bufb, biffr,

Cl denotes a kind of adhesion or tenacity, as in cleave, clay, cling, climb, clamber, tlammy, elasp, to clasp, to clip, to clinch, clock, clog, close, to close, a clod; a clot, as a clot of blood, elouted cream, a clutter, a cluster.

Sp implies a kind of diffipation or expanfion, especially a quick one, particularly if there be an r, as if it were from spargo or feparo : for example, spread, spring, jprig, fprout, Sprinkle, Split, Splinter, Spill, Spit, Sputser, fpatter.

SI denotes a kind of filent fall, or a less observable motion; as in flime, flide, flip, Sipper, My, Height, Sit, Slow, Hack, Right, fling, Stap.

And to likewife afb, in crafb, rafb, gafo, flash, clash, lash, slash, plash, trash, indicates fomething acting more nimbly and marply. But u/b, in crufb, rufb, gufb, flufb, blufb, brufb, bufb, pufb, implies iomething as acting more obtufely and dully. Yet in both there is indicated a fwift and fudden motion, not inftantaneous, but gradual, by the continued found f.

Thus in fling, fling, ding, fwing, cling, fing, wring, fling, the tingling of the termination ng, and the tharpness of the vowel i, imply the continuation of a very flender motion or tremor, at length indeed vanishing, But in tink, but not fuddenly interrupted. wink, fink, clink, cbink, tbink, that end in a mute confonant, there is also indicated a fudden ending.

If there be an I, as in jingle, tingle, tinkle, mingle, sprinkle, twinkle, there is implied a frequency, or iteration of fmall acts. And the fame frequency of acts, but lefs fubtile by reason of the clearer vowel a, is indicated in jangle, sangle, stangle, mangle, wrangle, brangle, dangle; as alto in mumble, grumble, jumble, tumble, fumble, rumble, crumble, fumble. But at the fame time the close u implies fomething obscure or obtunded; and a congeries of confonants mbl, denotes a confused kind of rolling or tumbling, as in ramble, fcamble, fcramble, womble, amble; but in these there is fomething acute.

In nimble, the acuteness of the vowel denotes celerity. In sparkle, sp denotes diffipation, ar an acute crackling, k a fudden interruption, 1 a frequent iteration; and in like manner in sprinkle, unless in may imply the fubtility of the diffipated guttules. Thick and this differ, in that the former ends with an obsufe confonant, and the latter with an acute.

In like manner, in Squeek, Squeak, Squeal, fquall, braul, voraul, yaul, fpaul, fcreek, volo; werm, vermis; worth, virtus; walp, implied in fm, proceeds to a quick violence, fiffe, whift, foft, jarr, burl, curl, whirl, buze, denoted by ar inddenly ended, as is fhewn by t. bufsle, fpindle, dwindle, twine, twift, and in many more, we may obferve the agreement of fuch fort of founds with the things fignified : and this fo frequently happens, that fcarce any language which I know can becompared with ours. So that one menofyllable word, of which kind are almost all ours, emphatically expresses what in other languages can fcarce be explained but by compounds, or decompounds, or fometimes a tedious circumlocution.

> We have many words borrowed from the Latin; but the greateft part of them were communicated by the intervention of the French; as, grace, face, elegánt, elegance, resemble.

> Some verbs which feem borrowed from the Latin, are formed from the present tense, and some from the fupines,

> From the prefent are formed, fpend, expend, expendo; conduce, conduco; de/pi/e, despicio; approve, approbo; conceive, concipio.

From the fupines, Jupp'icate, fupplico; demonstrate, demonstro; oi/pose, dispono ; expatiate, expatior; fupprefs, iupprimo; exempt, eximo.

Nothing is more apparent, than that Wallis goes too far in quest of originals. Many of these which seem selected as immediate defcendents from the Latin, are apparently French, as conceive, approves expose, exempt,

Some words purely French, not derived from the Latin, we have transferred into our language; as, garden, garter, buckler, to advance, to cry, to plead, from the French jardin, jartier, bouclier, avancer, cryer, plaider; though indeed, even of these, part is of Latin original.

As to many words which we have in common with the Germans, it is doubtful whether the old Teutons borrowed them from the Latins, or the Latins from the Teutons, or both had them from some common original; as, wine, vinum; wind, ventus; zvent, veni; zvay, via; zvall, vallum; wallow, volvo; wool, vellus; will, fbreek, faril, fbarn, fbrivel, wrinkle, crack, velpa ; day, dies ; draw, traho ; tame, doma mo, dauaa ; yoke, jugum, Eiver; over, upper, luper, imre; am, lum, siui ; break, frango; fly, volo; blow, flo. 1 make no souht but the Teutonick is more ancient than the Latin : and it is no lefs certain, that the Latin, which borrowed a great number of words, not only from the Greek, especially the Æolic, but from other neighbouring languages, as the Ofcan and others, which have long become obfolete, received not a few from the Teutonick. It is certain, that the English, German, and other Teutonick languages, retained fome derived from the Greek, which the Latin has not; as path, pfad, ax, acbs, mit, ford, pfurd, daugh-ter; sochter, mickle, mingle, moon, fear, grave, graff, to grave, to ferape, whole, beal, from שמאיר, בנים, גופות, סוסף גוסר, גוציאאטר, גוyrum, urnn, Englis, ygaqa, ÖLOG, EILÉW. Since they received these immediately from the Greeks, without the intervention of the Latin language, why may not other words be derived immediately from the fame fountain, though they be likewife found among the Latins?

Our ancestors were studious 'to form borrowed words, however long, into monofyllables; and not only cut off the formative terminations, but cropped the first syllable, especially in words beginning with a vowel; and rejected not only vowels in the middle, but likewife confonants of a weaker found, retaining the fronger, which seem the bones of words, or changing them for others of the fame organ, in order that the found might become the fofter; but especially transposing their order, that they might the more readily be pronounced without the intermediate vowels. For example, in expendo, spend; exemplum, Sample; excipio, Scape ; extraneus, frange; extractum, ftretch'd ; excrucio, to fcrew; exfcorio, to fcour; excorio, to fcourge; excortico, to fcratch; and others beginning with ex: as also, emendo, to mend; episcopus, bishop; in Danish Bifp; epistola, piftie; hospitale, Spittle; Hilpania, Spain; historia, ftory.

Many of these etymologies are doubtful, and some evidently mistaken.

The following are formewhat harder, Alexander, Sander; Elifabetha, Betty; apis, hee; aper, har; p paffing into b, as in biftop; and by cutting off a from the beginning, which is reftored in the middle; but for the old bar or bare, we now fay bear; as for lange long; for bain, bane; for flane, flone; aprugna, brawn, p being changed into b, and a transpoled, as in aper, and g changed into w, as in pignus, pawn; lege, law; alende, for, cutting off the beginning, and changing p into f, as in pellis, a fell; pullus, a foal; pater, father; pavor, fear; polio, file; pleo, impleo, fill, full; pifcis, fifb; and transposing o into the middle, which was taken from the beginning; apex, a piece; peak, pike ; zophorus, freeze; muslum, stum; detensio, fence ; dispensator, spencer ; asculto, escouter, Fr. fcout ; exicalpo, fcrape, reftoring / inftead of r, and hence fcrap, fcrabble, fcrawl; exculpo, scoop; exterritus, flart; extonitus, attonitus, fonn'd; ftomachus, maw; offendo, fined; obflipo, flop; audere, dare; cavere, ware, whence a ware, beware, wary, warn, warning; for the Latin w confonant formerly founded like our w, and the modern found of the v confonant was formerly that of the letter f, that is, the Æolick digamma, which had the found of ϕ , and the modern found of the letter fwas that of the Greek ϕ or pb; ulcus, ul-cere, ulcer, fore, and hence forry, forrow, forrowful; ingenium, engine, giu; icalenus, leaning, unless you would rather derive it from xhire, whence incline ; infundibulum, funnel; gagates, jets; projectum, to jete forth, a jetty; cucullus, a cowl.

Some may feem harfher, yet may not be rejecked, for it at leaft appears, that forme of them are derived from proper names, and there are others whofe etymology is acknowledged by every body; as, Alexander, Elick, Scander, Sander, Sandy, Sanny; Elizabetha, Elizabeth, Elizabeth, Berty, Befs; Margareta, Margaret, Marget, Meg, Peg; Maria, Mary, Mal, Pal, Malkin, Maukin, Matukes; Matthæus, Matuka, Matthewa; Martha, Matthæus, Matuka, Matthewa; Martha, Matthæus, Wilheimus, Girelama, Guillaume; Wilhiam, Will, Bill, Wikin, Wicken, Wicht, Weeks.

Thus cariophyllus, flos; gerofilo, Ital. girifice; gllofer, Fr. gillifloruer, which the vulgar call julyfloruer, as if derived from the month July; petrofelinum, parfley; portulaca, profilin; cydonium, gaine; cydoni atum, quiddeny; perficum, peacb; eruca, eruke; which they corrupt to car-neig, as if it rook its name from the ear; annullus geminus, a ginmal, or gimbal ring; and thas gin d the word gimbal and jumbal is transferred (*) other things thus interwoven; 'quelque's choles, kick/bacwt. Since the origin of the let', and many others, however forced, is evident; it ought to appear no worder to any one 'if the ancients have thus disfigured many, et' fpecially as they fo much affected monofyllatbles; and, to make them found the fofter, took this liberty of maiming, taking away, changing, transposing, and fottening them.

But while we derive thele from the Latin, I do not mean to fay, that many of them did not immediately come to us from the Saxon; Danish, Dutch, and Teutonick languages; and other dialects, and fome taken more lately from the French or Italians, or Spaniards.

The fame word, according to its different fignifications, often has a different origin ; as, to bear a burden, from fero; but to bear, whence birth, born, bairn, comes from pario ; and a bear, at least if it be of Latin original, from fera. Thus perch. a fish, from perca ; but perch, a measure, from periica, and likewife to perch. To fpell is from fyllaba; but speli, an inchantment, by which it is believed that the boundaries are fo fixed in lands that none can pais them against the master's will, from expello; and [pell, a meffenger. from cpifiola; whence gospel, good-spel, or god spel. Thus freese, or freeze, from fri-gesco; but freeze, an architectonic word, trom zopborus; but freese, for cloth, from Frifia, or perhaps from frigesco, as being more fit than any other for keeping out the cold.

There are many words among us, even monofyllables, compounded of two or more words, at leaft ferving inftead of compounds, and comprising the fignification of more words than one; as, from fcrip and roll comes scroll; from proud and dance, prance; from ft of the verb flay or fland and our, is made flout; from flout and bardy, flurdy; from fp of fpit or fpere, and out, comes fpout; from the fame fo with the termination in, is (pin; and adding out, (pin out; and from the fame sp, with it, is spit, which only differs from spour in that it is smaller, and with less noise and force; but sputter is, because of the obscure w, something between spit and spout; and by reason of adding r, it intimates a frequent iteration and noife, but obscurely confused : whereas spatter, on account of the fharper and clearer vowel a, intimates a more diftinct noife, in which it chiefly differs from fputter. From the fame /p, and the termi-nation ark, comes frark, fignifying a fingle emifiion of fire with a noile; namely, fp the emiffion, ar the more acute noile, and k, the more conforant, intimittes its being fuddenly terminated ; but adding /, is made the J . the frequentative fparkle. The fame fp, by adding r, that is fpr, implies a more lively impetus of diffuting or expanding itfelf; to which adding the termination ing, it becomes foring; its vigour for imports, its tharpnets, the termination ing, and laftly in acute and tremulous, ends in the mute confonant g, denotes the fudden ending of any motion, that it is meant in its primary fignification, of a fingle, not a complicated ex-Hition. Hence we call fpring whatever has an elaffick force; as allo a fountain of wa-ter, and thence the origin of any thing; and to foring, to germinate; and fpring, one of the four featons. From the fame for and eur, is formed sprout, and with the termi-nation ig, sprig; of which the following, for the most part, is the difference : sprout, of a groffer found, imports a fatter or groffer bud ; forig, of a flenderer found, denotes a fmaller fhoot. In like manner, from fr of the verb firive, and out, comes firout and firut. From the fame fir, and the termination uggle, is made ftruggle; and this gl imports, but without any great noife, by reafon of the obscure found of the vowel u. In like manner, from tbrow and roll is made trull; and almost in the fame fense is trundle, from throw or thruft, and rundle. Thus graff or grough is compounded of grave and rough ; and trudge from tread or trot, and drudge.

In these observations it is easy to discover great fagacity and great extravagance, an ability to do much defeated by the defire of doing more than enough. It may be remarked,

1. That Wallis's derivations are often fo made, that by the fame licence any language may be deduced from any other.

2. That he makes no diffinction between words immediately derived by us from the Latin, and thole which being copied from other languages, can therefore afford no example of the genius of the English language, or its laws of derivation.

3. That he derives from the Latin, often with great harshness and violence, words apparently Teutonick; and therefore, according to his own declaration, probably older than the tongue to which he refers them.

4. That some of his derivations are apparently erroneous. Vol. 1,

PART III

SYNTAX.

The effablished practice of grammarians requires that I should here treat of the Syntax; but our language has so little inflection, or variety of terminations, that its construction neither requires nor admits many rules. Wallis therefore has totally omitted it; and Johnson, whose defire of following the writers upon the learned languages made him think a syntax indispensably necessary has published such petty observations as were better omitted.

The verb, as in other languages, agrees with the nominative in number and per(on; as, Thou flieft from good; He runs to death.

Our adjectives and pronouns are invariable.

Of two fubftantives the noun poffeffive is the genitive ; as, His father's glory ; The fun's beat.

Verbs transitive require an oblique case; as, He loves me; You fear bim.

All prepofitions require an oblique cale: He gave this to me; He took this from me; He fays this of me; He came with me.

PART IV.

PROSODY.

It is common for those that deliver the grapmar of modern languages, to omit the Prolody. So that of the Italians is neglected by Buomattei; that of the French by Defmarais; and that of the English by Wallis, Cooper, and even by Jobnfon though a poet. But as the laws of metre are included in the idea of a grammar, I have thought it proper to infert them.

Profody comprises orthosphy, or the rules of pronunciation; and orthometry, or the laws of verification.

ςΙ.

PRONUNCIATION is juft, when every letter has its proper found, and when every fyllable has its proper accent, or, which in English verd fificafification is the fame, its proper quantity.

The founds of the letters have been already explained; and rules for the accent or quantity are not eafily to be given, being fubject to innumtrable exceptions. Such however as I have read or formed, I shall here propose.

1. Of diffyllables formed by affining a termination, the former syllable is commonly accented, as clildist, kingdom, ácteft, ácted, toilsome, lover, scoffer, sairer, soremost, zéalous, studness, gódly, méekty, ártist.

2. Diffyllables formed by prefixing a fyllable to the radical word, have commonly the accent on the latter; as, to beget, to beferm, to beflow.

3. Of diffyllables, which are at once nouns and verbs, the verb has commonly the accent on the latter, and the noun on the former fyllable; as, to descánt, a déscant; to cemént, a cément; to contráct, a contract.

This rule has many exceptions. Through verbs feldom have their accent on the former, yet nouns often have it on the latter fyllable; as, delight, perfume.

4. All diffyllables ending in y, as éránny; in our, as lábour, fávour; in ow, as willow, wállow, except allow; in le, as báttle, bible; in ifc, as bánifb; in ck, as cámhrick, céfjock; in ter, as to látter; in age, as coúrage; in en, as fásicu; in et, as quiet, accent the former fyllable.

5. Diffyllable nouns in er, as cánker, bútter, have the accent on the former fyllable.

6. Diffyllable verbs terminating in a confonant and e final, as comprife, ef ápe; or having a diphthong in the latt fyllable, as appéafe, rewéal; or ending in two confonants, as attend; have the accent on the latter fyllable.

7. DiffyHable nouns having a diphthong in the latter fyHable, have commonly thei accent on the latter fyHable, as applaife; except words in ain, cértain, mountain.

8. Triffyllables formed by adding a termination, or prefixing a fyllable, retain the accent of the radical word, as lowelinefs, tendernefs, contemner, wagonner, phylical, befpatter, comménting, comménding, affurance.

9. Triffyllables ending in ous, as grácious, árduous; in al, as cápital; in iony as ménsion, accent the first.

10. Triffyllables ending in cs. ent, and ate, accent the first fyllable, as countenance, continence, ármament, imminent, élegant, projagate, except they be derived from words having the accent on the last, as connévence, acquáintance; or the middle fyllable hath a vowel before two confonants, as promulgate.

11. Triffyllables ending in 9, as éntity, fpécify, liberty, withory, fubfady, commonly accent the first fyllable.

12. Triffyllables in re or le accent the first fyllable, as légible, théatre, except d'sciple, and some words which have a position, as exémple, etissile.

13. Triffyllables in ude commonly accent the fift fyllable, as plénitude.

14. Triffyllables ending in ator or atour, as creatour, or having in the middle fyllable a diphthong, as endetacour; or a vowel before two confonants, as doméflick, accent the middle fyllable.

15. Triffyllables that have their accent on the laft fyllable are commonly French, as acquiéfe, repartée, magazine, or words formed by prefixing one or two fyllables to an Acote fyllable, as immature, over charge.

i6. Polyfyllables, or words of more than three fyllables, follow the accent of the words from which they are derived, as arrogaling, (Intimity,) inincintinently, commendable, communi- Of fix, cablenels.

17. Words in ion have the accent upon the antepenalt, as Jalvárion, perturbátion, concástion; words in atour or ator on the penult, as dedicátor.

18. Words ending in le commonly have the accent on the first fylla--ble, as ámicable, unless the second fyllable have a vowel before two confonants, as combufible.

19. Words ending in ous have the accent on the antepenult, as uxérious, evolutuous.

zo. Words ending in ty have their accent on the antepenult, as pufillar mimity, activity.

These rules are not advanced as complete or infallible, but propoled as uleful. Almost every rule of every language has its exceptions; and in English, as in other tongues, much must be learned by example and authority. Perhaps more and better roles may be given that have elcaped my observation.

§ II.

VERSIFICATION is the arrangement of a certain number of lyllables according to certain laws.

The feet of our verfes are either iambick, as alóft, create; or trochaick, as bey, lefty.

Our iambick measure comprises verles

Our ancient poets wrote verses sometimes of twelve syllables, as Dray- ton's Polyolbion.

And when all Wales befide (by fortune or by might)

- Unto her ancient foe refign'd her ancient right, A constant maiden fill the only did remain,
- The jast her genuine laws which floutly did
- And as each one is prais'd for her peculiar things;
- So only fire is rich, in mountains, meres, and forings,
- And holds herfelf as great in her fuperfluous wafte,
- As others by their towns, and froitful tillage grac'd.

And of fourteen, as Chepman's Homer.

- And as the mind of fuch a man, that hath a long way gone,
- And either knoweth not his way, or elfe would let alone

His purpos'd journey, is distract.

The verie of twelve fyllables, called an Alexandrine, is now only used to diversify heroick lines.

Waller was imooth, but Dryden taught to join

The varying verfe, the full refounding line,

The long majeflick march, and energy divinc. Pope.

The pause in the Alexandrine must be at the fixth fyllable.

The verse of fourteen syllables is now broken into a soft lyrick measure of verses, confisting alternately of eight syllables and fix.

She to receive thy radiant name, Selects a whiter space. Fenton.

When all fhall praife, and ev'ry lay Devote a wreath to thee, That day, for come it will, that day Shall I lament to fee. Lewis.

We have another measure very quick and lively, and therefore much used in fongs, which may be called the anapeflick, in which the accent refts upon every third fyllable.

- May I góvern my pássions with ábsolute swáy,
- And grow wifer and better as life wears away.

In this measure a fyllable is often retwenched from the first foot, as

Diógenes fúrly and proud.

I think not of I'ris, nor I'ris of me.

These measures are varied by many come binations, and sometimes by double endings, either with or without rhyme, as in the bey roick measure.

'Tis heaven itself that points out an hered after,

And intimates eternity to man.

So in that of eight fyllables, They neither added nor confounded, They neither wanted nor abounded.

In that of feven,

For refiftance I could fear none, But with twenty fhips had done, What thou, brave and happy Vernoga Haft atchiev'd with fix alone.

In that of fix,'

'Twas when the feas were roaring, With hollow blafts of wind, A damfel lay deploring, All on a rock reclin'd.

In the anapeffick,

When terrible tempefts affail us, And mountainous billows affright, Nor power nor wealth can avail us,

But skilful industry fteers right.

To these measures, and their laws, may be reduced every species of English verse,

Our verification admits of few licences, except a fynalæpba, or elifion of e in the before a vowel, as th' eternal; and more rarely of • in to, as t' accept; and a fynærefis, by which two fhort vowels coalefce into one fyllable, as queftion, fpecial; or a word is contracted by the expulsion of a fhort vowel before a liquid, as avy'rice, temp'rance.

Thus have I collected rules and examples, by which the English language may be learned, if the reader be already acquainted with grammatical terms, or taught by a mafter to those that are more ignorant. To have written a grammar for fuch as are not yet initiated in the fchools, would have been tedious, and perhaps at last ineffectual.
